Article 1 General Stipulations

1. The Directive on Essential Prerequisites of Final Theses, Doctorate Degree Theses, and Associate Professorship Degree Theses, Release and Making Available Thereof During the Time of Keeping the Same, and Originality Check Valid for Pavol Jozef Šafárik University in Košice and Its Constituents (hereinafter "the Directive") regulates the essential appurtenances final degree theses, doctorate degree theses and associate professorship degree theses accomplished at Pavol Jozef Šafárik University in Košice (hereinafter "UPJŠ" or "the University") and a uniform procedure in registering, keeping, publishing, and making available them during the time of their keeping through the system of the Central Register of Final Theses and the library-information system of the UPJŠ in Košice University Library (hereinafter the “UK”) and in the originality check.

2. This Directive relates to final degree theses of students studying at their first, second, and third levels of university study in accredited study programmes; it adequately applies to doctorate and associate professorship degree theses.

Article 2

Basic Notions and Definitions

1. In accordance with Law Act No. 131/2002 Coll. on Higher Education and on the Changes of and/or Amendments to Some of the Law Acts as Amended and on changes of and/or amendments to some of the law acts as amended (hereinafter “Law Act on Higher Education”), the final degree thesis is an inseparable part of study under each and any study programme.
2. Under the Higher Education Law Act, the final degree thesis is a school publication conceived by the student for the sake of complying with their student commitments following from their legal relationship to the University.¹ The final degree thesis is a stand-alone piece of academic assignment of the student carried out under the supervision of the supervisor of the final degree thesis as appointed by the head of the supervising unit. In addition to the supervisor, the supervising unit chairperson may appoint a consultant for the final degree thesis, specifically if participation of external collaborators is required in supervising the final degree thesis. In such a case, either the supervisor or the consultant must have their place of thesis at UPJŠ.
3. In accordance with the Higher Education Law Act, the final degree thesis includes the following:
 - a) Bachelor degree thesis² – within the study under the first level study programme (the baccalaureate study programme);
 - b) Magister degree thesis³ – within the study under the second level study programme or the study programme pursuant to Section 53 paragraph 3 Higher Education Law Act (the Magister study programme, the doctorate study programme);
 - c) Dissertation thesis⁴ – within the study under the third level study programme (the PhD study programme).
4. In accordance with the Law Act⁵, the candidate in their doctorate thesis is to demonstrate their deeper knowledge in the respective study branch, they are capable of independently acquiring new findings of science/scholarship and practice and are capable to apply the acquired pieces of knowledge in their practice.
5. In accordance with Law Act No. ME SR No. 6/2005 Coll. on the procedure of acquiring a scientific-teaching or artistic-teaching degree of Associate Professor or Professor,
 - a) a monograph, or
 - b) a mono-thematic piece of work bringing novel scientific/scholarly pieces of knowledge, or

¹ Section 51 par. 3 Law Act No. 131/2002 Coll. on higher education as amended

² Section 52 par. 4 Law Act No. 131/2002 Coll. on higher education as amended

³ Section 53 par. 4 Law Act No. 131/2002 Coll. on higher education as amended

⁴ Section 54 par. 3 Law Act No. 131/2002 Coll. on higher education as amended

⁵ Section 53 par. 8 Law Act No. 131/2002 Coll. on higher education as amended

- c) a set of published scientific/scholarly pieces of knowledge supplemented by a commentary, or
 - d) documentation on a work of art or an artistic performance or a set of performed artistic works or artistic creations.
6. A supervising unit is a unit at UPJŠ or its constituents (e.g. a department or an institute) providing a student with material and technical conditions for preparing their degree thesis. The supervising unit may under an agreement in writing cooperate with an external entity (a private company, a state or public organization, etc.).
7. A licensing agreement on making use of a final degree, PhD or associate professorship degree thesis (hereinafter “the licensing agreement”) is under Law Act No. 618/2003 Coll. on copyright and the related rights (copyright law) as amended an agreement between an author and Pavol Jozef Šafárik University in Košice. It regulates the mode of making use and publishing the final degree, PhD or associate professorship degree thesis (Annex No. 4).

Article 3

Content of the Final Degree Thesis

1. By the bachelor degree thesis the mastery of the essentials of theory and scientific/scholarly terminology, essential standard scientific and scholarly methods and the level of knowledge and skills are verified, which the student has acquired in the course of their study. The student in the respective thesis manifests their competence to conceive an independent professional piece of work as to both form and content. The thesis may contain elements of originality, summarization, and compilation.
2. By the magister degree thesis, mastery of the theory and professional terminology are verified, as well as application of essential standard scientific and scholarly methods and the level of knowledge and skills which the student has acquired in the course of their study, along with their competence to employ these in addressing the issues of the respective study branch. By the thesis, the student manifests their competence to conceive an independent professional piece of work as to both form and content. The thesis may contain elements of originality, summarization, and compilation.
3. The dissertation thesis has a character of a scientific/scholarly piece of work, in which the PhD student manifests their competence and readiness to independently and creatively work in the field of science, scholarship, and/or research and/or their preparedness for their independent theoretical and creative artistic pursuits, for addressing theoretical problems and practical issues of the respective scientific/scholarly branch. The author of the PhD dissertation manifests their competence of administering the chosen scientific/scholarly issue by employing an inter-disciplinary approach, resulting in a conclusion.
4. Any final degree, PhD or associate professorship degree thesis must be original and conceived by the author in such a way that the rules of working with information sources are observed. No final degree, PhD or associate professorship degree thesis shall have a character of plagiarism and shall not violate copyright of other authors.

Article 4
Assigning the Final and PhD. Theses

1. The final, PhD, and associate professorship theses register (hereinafter referred to as “FTR”) represents part of the subsystem of studies in the Academic Information System, which serves for assigning final theses, applying for final theses, committing the final and the qualification theses and making available the originality check results.
2. The draft themes of bachelor and magister degree theses are published by way of an assignment placed in the FTR within the deadline as defined in the time schedule of the respective academic year. The supervising unit chairperson is in charge of publishing the themes of the above theses.

6. The assignment.

7. The abstract contains information on the objectives of the thesis, its brief contents, results and significance of the entire thesis. The abstract contains 3 to 5 keywords. The abstract is written as one continuous paragraph, and its range is usually 100 to 500 words. The language versions of the abstracts are listed on separate pages.

8. The table of contents is an overview of both non-paginated and paginated sections (chapters) of the thesis.

9. The list of illustrations, list of tables, list of abbreviations and signs, as well as the glossary of terms, are optional parts of the thesis. The lists are presented in case they contribute to increasing transparency, clarity of interpretation and intelligibility of the thesis.

10. The main body of the text of the final thesis consists of the following:

- a) introduction,
- b) core text,
- c) conclusion,
- d) summary (mandatory only if the thesis is written in another than the national language),
- e) list of the sources employed.

11. In the introduction, the author succinctly and eloquently describes the state of knowledge or practice in the field, which is the subject matter of the final degree thesis and introduces the reader to the importance, objectives, and purpose of the thesis. In the introduction the author emphasizes, why the thesis is important and why they decided to address the particular topic. The introduction as the name of the chapter is not paginated and usually extends on 1 to 2 pages.

12. The core text is the main part of the thesis and is divided into chapters, subchapters, paragraphs and so on according to the type of the thesis, which are paginated in the ascending order. Each new paginated chapter of the first level starts on a new page.

13. Arrangement of the core text of the thesis is determined by the type of thesis. The core text in the scientific / scholarly and technical theses usually consists of the following essential parts:

- a) the current state of the set of issues tackled both in this country and abroad,

- b) the objective(s) of the thesis,
- c) methodology of the thesis and methods of research,
- d) outcomes of the thesis,
- e) discussion.

14. In the part "Current Status" in the set of issues addressed, the author presents the available information and knowledge on the given theme. The source for addressing the issues shall consist in the currently published works by both national and foreign authors. The proportion of this part of the scope of degree thesis should be appropriate to the nature of the theme, but as a matter of rule it should not extend below 30%.

15. The part "Objective(s)" of the degree thesis shall clearly, succinctly and accurately describe the subject matter of the set of issues addressed. It shall also contain elaborated partial objectives, which are a precondition for attaining the main objective.

16. The part "Methodology of the Thesis and Methods of Research" shall usually include the following:

- a) characteristics of the object of research,
- b) working procedures,
- c) the mode the data have been collected and their resources,
- d) methods of evaluation employed and interpretation of results,
- e) statistical methods.

17. The part "Results of the Degree Thesis and Discussion" are the most significant part of the final degree thesis. The results (one's own attitudes and/or one's own solutions attained by the author, shall be logically organized and in describing these they need to be adequately utilized. At the same time, all the facts and evidence are commented on in confrontation with the results of other authors. The Results of the Thesis and the Discussion may also be represented by one single section; together they generally represent 30% to 40% of the entire scope of the final degree thesis.

18. In the part "Conclusion", it is necessary to briefly summarize the results attained in relation to the objectives stated. The Conclusion shall not be paginated as a separate chapter.

19. If the final degree thesis is written in a foreign language, it must include the summary in the Slovak language in the extent usually approaching 10% of that of the final degree thesis.

20. The List of the Sources Employed contains a complete list of bibliographical references. The scope of this section is given by the number of sources, which must correspond with the citations used in the text.

21. The optional part "Annexes" contains materials, which have not been included directly in the text. Each annex shall start on a new page, it shall be marked with a capital letter and the List of Annexes shall be part of the Table of Contents.

22. The optional "Final Section" of the degree thesis may include the thesis register, biography of the author, and other supplemental materials.

Article 6

Citations and Bibliographical References

1. In citing, ethics and technique are of importance. Ethics of citing determines the mode of compliance with ethical standards in relation to other person's ideas and results contained in other documents and in the sources exploited. The technique of citations reflects whether and how correctly, according to the norm⁸, the author associates the places in the text with the records of the documents that exist in the list of bibliographical references.

2. The method of citing is governed by the usage prevailing in the given field of science/scholarship, observing the applicable standards and norms. The consistent method of citing is to be employed in the entire final degree thesis, doctorate thesis and associate professorship thesis.

4. Description of the examples of citations (Annex No. 5) may be employed with the method of concurrent notes and with the method of numerical references as technique of citing pursuant to ISO 690 and ISO 690-2 standards.

Article 7

Formal Arrangement of Final Degree Theses

1. As a matter of rule, the final thesis is conceived in the national (Slovak) language in the first person plural and in the past tense. With the agreement of the supervising unit chairperson, the final degree thesis may be written and defended in another than the national language. In case the degree final thesis is conceived in a foreign-language version, it shall contain a summary in Slovak extending on one standard page maximum.
2. Formal arrangement of the theses shall observe the following standards⁹:

4. The final degree thesis shall be written under the rules of the Slovak language (or those of the foreign language employed).
5. The degree thesis shall be arranged according to standard rules and shall comply with formal and citation criteria and principles of referencing to primary and secondary sources.
6. The final degree theses shall be prepared in printed form and bound in hardcover (not coil), so that individual pages cannot be taken out.
7. The scope of the thesis shall be determined by the assignor, taking into account the habits peculiar to the given field of study. By way of orientation, the appropriate scope may be defined as follows (the data determining the scope of work contain the number of characters, including spaces; the number of pages is only an indication):
 - Bachelor degree thesis: 54 000 - 72 000 characters, i.e. 30 to 40 standard pages,
 - Magister degree thesis: 90 000 - 126 000 characters, i.e. 50 to 70 standard pages,
 - Dissertation: 144 000 - 270 000 characters, i.e. 80 to 150 standard pages.
8. The degree thesis pages shall be paginated sequentially in Arabic numerals. The page number shall be placed on the page bottom part (foot), in the middle or on the outer side of the page. The pages shall be paginated by an equal script type in the size identical with that of the text of the thesis. If the text is only printed on one side of the sheet, the number on the bottom side of the sheets indicates the sheet number. The title page shall be included within pagination, but shall contain no numeral. Each of the following pages or sheets shall bear the page number or the sheet number.
9. The above stipulations shall adequately apply on the formal arrangement of doctorate degree theses and associate professorship theses.
10. Before loading the degree thesis in the register, the author shall perform a check of completeness and correctness of the data by means of an analytical sheet that shall be generated by the FTR and remove any eventual inconsistency.

Article 8

Submission and Registration of the Final Degree Thesis, Licensing Agreement, and Originality Check

1. The final degree theses of the bachelor and magister/doctoral study shall be submitted on fixed dates determined by the faculties, but in any case at least two calendar months before the scheduled date of defence. The dissertation shall be submitted by the student no later than on 31st August of the last year of their PhD. Studies, unless otherwise specified by the respective faculty internal regulation.
2. The author shall submit their final degree thesis within the deadline in both electronic and printed forms.
3. The final degree thesis in its electronic form, which the author shall submit by way of FTR, shall comply with the following requirements:

- a) it shall be prepared in the .pdf format in such a way that textual information may be retrieved from it,
 - b) it shall be identical with the printed version apart from the assignment, which shall be published in the electronic form without signatures of the persons concerned.
4. The FTR shall arrange the forwarding the final degree thesis containing the appropriate identification data necessary for the originality check in the Central Register of Final Degree Theses. The supervisor shall take over from the FTR a record of the thesis originality that is sent from the Central Register of Final Degree Theses and attach the same with the final degree thesis, unless otherwise specified by an internal regulation of the faculty/unit.
 5. The FTR will automatically generate a draft licensing agreement (Annex No. 4) between the thesis author and the Slovak Republic, represented by Pavol Jozef Šafárik University in Košice.
 6. The licensing agreement shall be signed by the UPJŠ Rector or a person authorized by the Rector within 30 days from the date of its receipt. The author will keep one copy of the licensing agreement, the other copy will be deposited in the student's personal file at the Dean's Office of the respective faculty.
 7. The author shall submit the final degree thesis (in two copies with bachelor theses and in four copies with dissertations) in a place as specified by the faculty internal regulation (bachelor and magister theses) or to the faculty dean (dissertations) within three working days at the latest after forwarding the electronic form of the final degree thesis in the FTR. Simultaneously with the thesis, the author shall hand over two copies of the draft licensing agreement signed by the same.
 8. Should the author apply in the draft licensing agreement for a postponement exceeding 12 months, they shall also include reasons for the postponement period applied for. The dean of the respective faculty shall give their opinion on granting the postponement period within 10 calendar days. The postponement period may be 36 months at most. The precise procedure, mode, and place of handing over the final degree thesis shall be specified by individual faculties.
 9. If the final degree thesis contains the data whose publishing is excluded mainly due to a third person's business secret, a concealed fact or personal particulars, the author may give those data in a separate non-public documentation, not forming part of the final degree thesis being published and shall only be intended for the final degree thesis supervisor, the reviewer, and the board of examiners.¹⁰
 10. The supervisor's review shall contain a statement on the outcome of the originality record. In case of external reviewers, the respective department shall provide the reviewers with the final degree thesis originality check record simultaneously with handing over the final degree thesis for the purpose of making a reviewer's review and shall arrange loading the review in the FTR.
 11. The student shall have the right to make themselves familiarized with the reviews three working days prior to the date of defence at the latest.

¹⁰ Section 62a paragraph 2 Law Act No. 131/2002 Coll. on higher education and on the changes of and/or amendments to some of the law acts as amended.

12. The reviews shall be forwarded en masse via the FTR in the Central Register in the .pdf format with a possibility of being converted into a genuine text. The reviews shall be published via the Central Register in accordance with the licensing agreement on the employment of the review of a final degree thesis, a doctorate thesis or an associate professorship thesis (Annex No. 5).
13. The above stipulations shall adequately apply for doctorate and associate professorship theses.

Article 9
