

Project VEGA 1/0623/17 (2017-2019) An analysis of social and personal characteristics of adolescents in relation to indicators of risk behaviour in the context of family processes.

Principal investigator: Mgr. Mária Bačíková, PhD.

Annotation: An analysis of social and personal characteristics of adolescents in relation to indicators of risk behavior in the context of family processes.

The main goal of this project is to analyze social and personal characteristics of adolescents in relation to indicators of risk behaviour in the context of family processes. In this project, the existing longitudinal datasets will be analyzed and additional data will be obtained from adolescents and their parents. The goal is to analyze the discrepancies in the perception of family processes between parents and adolescents; explore changes in family processes, social and personal characteristics and risk behaviour of adolescents as well as to analyze potential moderators of these relationships. The findings will be disseminated via publications in scientific journals and presented at international scientific conferences.